The Government of the Commonwealth

To the Hon. President and Members of the Senate

This Act enacts the Constitution and new Constitution of the Commonwealth of the Philippines. The Constitution provides for a President and Vice-President, who shall be elected by the people for a term of six years, and shall not be subject to re-election. The President shall have the power to proclaim a State of War and to declare martial law in any part of the Commonwealth. The Constitution also provides for a Senate and a House of Representatives, which shall have the power to make laws for the government of the Commonwealth. The Constitution further provides for a Supreme Court, which shall have the power to interpret the Constitution and to review the decisions of the lower courts. The Constitution also provides for the establishment of a national police force and for the establishment of a national army. The Constitution further provides for the establishment of a national school system and for the establishment of a national health system.
