Chaplains Rollins and O'Connor Reading Burial Services of Lieutenant John Flenniken, first American officer killed at Vailly, France, February, 1918.

Examining a Sledge Hammer used by Germans to destroy property in village later occupied by the 102d Infantry. Vailly, France, March 5, 1918.
An Unfortunate Landing.

The Food Detail carrying food along the communicating trench to the boys in the front-line trenches. Company M, 102d Infantry, formerly 1st and 2d Connecticut Infantry, 1st Vermont Infantry and Massachusetts Infantry, on Plateau Chemin-des-Dames, France, March 5, 1918.
Raiding Party, 101st Infantry, who received decoration for conduct in big raid of February 23, near Vailly, France.
Stringing Telephone and Telegraph Lines from the Front to the different Headquarters of the 26th Division. Signal Corps Platoon of Headquarters Company, 101st United States Infantry, formerly 9th Massachusetts Infantry, 6th Massachusetts Infantry and 5th Massachusetts Infantry, near Aizy, France, March 5, 1918.

Armored Engine on the Narrow Gauge which ran to Plateau Chemin-des-Dames and carried shells. Vailly, France, March, 1918.
Cook M. F. Goyette, Kitchen-Police and Field Kitchen near Dead Man's Curve. 102d Field Artillery, Battery A, 26th Division, Beaumont, France.

Camouflaged Gun Position at Dead Man's Curve, Sergt. E. F. O'Leary in charge, 102d Field Artillery, Battery A, 26th Division, Beaumont, France.
Anti-Aircraft Machine Gun of 101st Field Artillery, formerly 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery, New England Coast Artillery, Battery E, firing on a German observation plane which was flying over the battery, at Plateau Chemin-des-Dames, France, March 5, 1918. Note the smoke of bursting shells.

Headquarters Company, Signal Corps, carrying wire through trenches for telephones in observation stations at front. Ruins of Fort Mal-Maison marked with arrow. Note trenches winding through Valley leading to Fort. Plateau Chemin-des-Dames, France, March 12, 1918.
Major-General Edwards and Brigadier-General Traub congratulating Chaplain Boucher and Lieutenant H. K. Davison, 101st Infantry, who were the first officers in the 26th Division to win the Croix de Guerre. Chassey, France, March 6, 1918.

“Soup Wagon Race,” 104th United States Infantry, formerly 2d, 6th and 8th Massachusetts Regiments Infantry, field games, St. Patrick’s Day, Chassey, France, March 17, 1918.
101st Infantry, 26th Division, ready for departure to the front. March, 1918.
Making Germans Carry Photographic Equipment at Château-Thierry.

One of the Ambulance Drivers of the 102d Ambulance Corps (formerly 1st and 2d Massachusetts Ambulance Corps), 26th Division, who has just returned after having been on the road for fourteen hours.
Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and Douglas Campbell, attached to the 26th Division as Pursuit Group, at the Aviation Field, Toul, France.

Major Lufberry; Picture made Two Days before his Death.

Men of 26th Division in Trucks, Menil-la-Tour, Toul Sector, April 1, 1918.
Members of 101st Infantry, Guard of Honor at decoration of American soldiers who took part in a raid of February 23, 1918, near Vailly, France.
The Boys at the Front Line Trench receive food from Food Detail, Company M, 102d Infantry. Plateau Chemin-des-Dames, France, March 5, 1918.

Placing Bacon in Cans ready to go to the boys in the front line trenches, Company M, 102d Infantry, near Aisy, France, March 5, 1918.
Ruins of Vailly, France. March, 1918.
Colonel Frank N. Hume, 104th United States Infantry, formerly 2d, 6th and 8th Massachusetts Regiments Infantry, Vendesson, Chemin-des-Dames, France, March 12, 1918.

Two Germans Taken by Company C, 104th United States Infantry, formerly 2d, 6th and 8th Massachusetts Infantry, at Bois Brulé, while they were with raiding party which followed barrage over top, Boucq, France, April 4, 1918.
Interior of Young Men's Christian Association Recreation Room in Old Monastery, showing members of 101st and 103d Artillery, Rangeval, France, April 29, 1918. 101st, formerly 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery and New England Coast Artillery, 103d, formerly New Hampshire Field Artillery, New England Coast Artillery, Rhode Island Field Artillery, Connecticut Field Artillery, Rhode Island Signal Corps.
Men of 26th Division Entering Toul Sector to relieve the 1st Division. April 1, 1918.

French Children Watching 101st Ammunition Train, 26th Division, passing through village of Soulosse, France, on way to front, April 10, 1918.
Colonel Logan and Staff, 101st Infantry, 26th Division, at Château-Thierry on their way to trenches at Chemin-des-Dames. From left to right: Major Martin, Chaplain O'Connor, Major Thomas Murphy, Chaplain Petty, French officer, Frank Sibley, Colonel Logan, Chaplain Rollins. March, 1918.
Salvation Army Girls, Gladys and Irene McIntyre, Myrtle Turkington and Stella Young, served doughnuts and hot coffee to soldiers free. Supply sent to trenches every night. 26th Division. Ansauville, France, April 8, 1918.

Salvation Army Girls, Gladys and Irene McIntyre, Myrtle Turkington and Stella Young, with steel helmets and gas masks, made pies free each day for soldiers. 26th Division, Ansauville, France, April 2, 1918.
101st Engineers' Band Giving a Concert at Boucq, France, Headquarters 26th Division, April 11, 1918.
Members of 102d Infantry standing on the ruins of an old church, underneath which is the dugout where they live. Vailly, France, March 5, 1918.

Trophies captured at Seicheprey, France. Sergeant Charles Painter and Private Arthur Cobb, Photo Unit, 26th Division.
Colonel E. F. Tandy, 26th Division, Quartermaster, Menil-la-Tour, France, May 3, 1918.

Salvation Army Girls, Gladys and Irene McIntyre, Myrtle Turkington and Stella Young, with steel helmets and gas masks, made pies free each day for soldiers. 26th Division. Ansauville, France, April 2, 1918.
Battalions 2, 3 and 4, 101st Infantry, formerly 9th Massachusetts Infantry, 6th Massachusetts Infantry, 5th Massachusetts Infantry, Major Barry leading, on way to review of the 101st Infantry at Chasemy, France, March 6, 1918.

Wild Boar, Mascot of Motor Despatch Service Riders, 26th Division, and the two men who captured it. Boucq, France, April 4, 1918.
Interior of Young Men's Christian Association Tent, showing damage done by shell. 26th Division, Ansauville, France, April 23, 1918.
Motorcycle Squadron of the 26th Division Headquarters, preparing for a long trip. Boucq, France, April 8, 1918.

Members of Motor Truck Company No. 2, 231 Engineers, loading large drums of gasoline. Headquarters, 26th Division, Boucq, France, April 8, 1918.
Officers' and Enlisted Men's Young Men's Christian Association Abri or Shelter Tents, 26th Division. Showing Italian, French, English and American Soldiers. Menil-la-Tour, France, April 28, 1918.
Headquarters 26th Division Camouflaging New Office Building Under Construction, Boucq, France, April 12, 1918.

Ruins of Vailly, France, March, 1918.
An Upset. Righting the Plane which was damaged very little. 94th Aero Squadron, Toul, France, April 18, 1918.

From left to right: Captain J. Diediere, 2d Engineers, Captain Al. Ford, Lieutenant-Colonel M. C. Keith, P. S., and Captain Nathaniel Simpkins observing and locating the position of our batteries from courtyard at Headquarters, 26th Division, Boucq, France, April 12, 1918.
Chaplain De Valles, Knights of Columbus, attached to the 104th Infantry, 26th Division, decorated with Croix de Guerre for caring for the wounded under fire, Seicheprey, France, April 28, 1918.

Captain Joseph McConnell and Lieutenant Hanley in Front of Dugout, Broussy, France. This village is under shell fire. Captain McConnell was killed at St. Mihiel and Lieutenant Hanley died of wounds received at Verdun.
Interior of American Hospital Train. Note Operating Table in Centre of Car.
Exterior of Young Men's Christian Association Tent damaged by shell. 26th Division, Ansauville, France, April 23, 1918.

Company A, 101st Infantry, formerly 5th, 6th and 9th Massachusetts Infantry, cleaning up at new bathhouse, Headquarters 26th Division, Boucq, France, April 8, 1918.
Entrance to Major-General Edwards' Headquarters, 26th Division, Boucq, France, May 2, 1918.
Commandant de la Forst decorating Lieutenant's Douglas Campbell and Allan F. Winslow, 94th Aero Squadron, with Croix de Guerre at Aero Field, Toul, France, April 18, 1918. Winslow was later captured within the German lines and lost his arm.

Major-General Edwards, 26th Division, congratulating Croix de Guerre winners. Boucq, France, April 28, 1918.
Decoration of Regimental Colors by General Passaqa, 32d French Army Corps, 104th Regiment Infantry, 26th Division, formerly of 6th and 8th Regiments and 2d Infantry, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. First American Regiment cited for bravery and conduct under fire, Boucq, France, April 23, 1918.

Croix de Guerre, with which colors of 104th Regiment Infantry, 26th Division, were decorated. Boucq, France, April 23, 1918.
Church Bells in Evacuated Towns are used for sounding Gas Alarms. 101st United States Infantry, Flirey, France, May 31, 1918.

Automatic Washing Machine used by soldiers of 26th Division. Corniéville, France, May 27, 1918.
Church of Rambucourt during the Battle of Seicheprey. Colonel Logan's Headquarters were behind the Church. Note Shell breaking near the Church. April 21, 1918.
Ford Ambulance that was Shot off Road at Dead Man's Curve by German Guns, showing camouflaged 75 mm. guns in position. 26th Division. Beaumont, France, April 30, 1918.

Interior of Lunch Room, Young Men's Christian Association Enlisted Men's Club, near Toul, France, 26th Division, April 29, 1918.
Unloading Steel Rails used on narrow gauge railroad which supplied Field Artillery with munitions. Company E, 21st Engineers, 26th Division. In the Toul Sector, near Beaumont, France, April 30, 1918.

Interior Young Men's Christian Association Divisional Warehouse, 26th Division, near Toul, France, April 29, 1918.
Members of 101st, formerly 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery, New England Coast Artillery and 103d Field Artillery, formerly New Hampshire Field Artillery, New England Coast Artillery, Rhode Island Field Artillery, Connecticut Field Artillery and Rhode Island Signal Corps, in front of old monastery used by Young Men's Christian Association, Rangeval, France, April 29, 1918.

Sergeant E. F. O'Leary and his Gun Crew taking a Few Minutes' Rest. Their 75 mm. guns command an important section at Dead Man's Curve. Battery A, 102d Field Artillery, 26th Division, Beaumont, France. Formerly 2d Regiment Field Artillery, Massachusetts National Guard. April 30, 1918.
Red Cross Hospital; not one wounded Yank forgotten.

Front Line after the Boys had gone "over."
Auto Truck Equipped with Capstan, Pulling Road Tractor out of the Mud, 26th Division Headquarters, Boucq, France.

Captain David Gray, Photograph Division, watching Lieutenant E. H. Cooper and Privates Gideon Eikleberry and Charles Painter, Photo Unit, 26th Division, photographing street scene at Broussy, France, April 20, 1918.
Operations on Shrapnel Wounds on wounded Men from Seicheprey Battle. Operating Room, Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division. Sebastopol, France, May 2, 1918.
Lieutenant-Colonel Duncan K. Major, Chief of Staff, 26th Division, Boucq, France, May 2, 1918.

French Women Washing for Officers and Nurses. Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division, Sebastopol, France, May 2, 1918.
Some of the Nurses at Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division. Sebastopol, France, May 7, 1918.
Some of the Men who Received the Croix de Guerre: Chaplain J. B. DeValles, Captain Connelly, Captain Roberts, Lieutenant Barnett and Private Murphy. Boucq, France, April 28, 1918.

General Passaga, 32d French Army Corps, presenting Croix de Guerre to some members of 104th Infantry, 26th Division, Boucq, France, April 28, 1918.
Personnel of Evacuation Hospital No. 1, Prepared for Inspection. Sebastopol, France, May 7, 1918.
Officers' Ward, Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division, Sebastopol, France, May 2, 1918.

Men of Batteries A and B, Field Artillery, 26th Division, Alive after Battle of Seicheprey, playing with young lioness mascot. Rangeval, France, May 2, 1918.

Bringing in Broken Rifles after the Fight at Seicheprey. 26th Division. Menil-la-Tour, France, May 2, 1918.

Lieutenant-Colonel E. F. Smith about to inspect Battery B, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division. Camouflaged fence in background. Rangeval, France, May 5, 1918.
Officers of Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division. Sebastopol, France, May 7, 1918.
Colonel G. W. Bunnell, Division Engineer, 26th Division, and Commanding Officer, 101st Engineers, May 4, 1918, Boucq, France.

Gun of Battery D, 101st Field Artillery, formerly 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery and detachments New England Coast Artillery, 26th Division, which had burst, killing three and wounding three. Near Bras, Meuse, France, November 4, 1918.

French Colonials and Members of 101st Supply Train, 26th Division. Euville, France, May 6, 1918.
Major-General Dwight E. Aultman and Staff. Sitting, left to right: Captain McLeod, Adjutant; 2d Lieutenant Randall, Aide-de-Camp; Major-General Aultman, Brigade Commander; 2d Lieutenant Wright, Aide-de-Camp; 1st Lieutenant Henriot, Liaison Officer, 51st Field Artillery Brigade. Back Row: 2d Lieutenant Castro, Liaison Officer, 101st Field Artillery; 1st Lieutenant Higgins, Intelligence Officer; 1st Lieutenant Luther, Operation Officer; 2d Lieutenant Woods, Intelligence Officer; Major Adams, Sanitary Inspector; 2d Lieutenant Pitman, Operation Officer; 2d Lieutenant Chandler, Assistant Adjutant; 2d Lieutenant D'Azé, Liaison Officer, 102d Field Artillery; 1st Lieutenant Simpkins, Signal Officer, 51st Brigade Field Artillery, 26th Division. Boucque, France, May 11, 1918.

Part of 101st Supply Train, 26th Division, Major T. C. Baker commanding, passing through French village on way to front with troops. Euville, France.

Miss Winifred Holt and Mlle. Olioura (French Army Nurse) cheering the wounded. Miss Holt of New York has given her home for vocational work of the blind soldiers, and has given it the name of "The Light House." Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division. Sebastopol, France, May 7, 1918.
101st Supply Train, 26th Division, composed of men of the Troop B Cavalry, Rhode Island National Guard, and the 6th and 8th Regiments Infantry, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, Major T. C. Baker commanding, and some French Colonials. Euville, France, May 6, 1918.

Officers and Nurses Enjoying the Evening at a Dance, Evacuation Hospital No. 1, 26th Division, May 7, 1918.
Brigadier-General Peter E. Traub and Staff, 51st Brigade, United States Infantry, Post Command L’Hermitage, Boucq Sector, France, May 11, 1918. Sitting, left to right: Major W. W. Wade, Brigade Adjutant; Brigadier-General Peter E. Traub; Captain R. D. De St. Croix, 151st Regiment, French Infantry, attached 51st Brigade, United States Infantry. Standing, left to right: 1st Lieutenant Albert C. Gray, Infantry Aide-de-Camp, 1st Lieutenant Walter A. Hardie, Signal Corps, 1st Lieutenant C. E. Hart, Infantry Aide-de-Camp; 1st Lieutenant P. B. Valle, Liaison Officer, 1st Lieutenant P. H. English, 102d Infantry, 2d Lieutenant C. L. Lanigan, Liaison Officer, 102d Regiment Field Artillery.
French Ladies with their American Friends. 26th Division, Jouy, France, May 27, 1918.

1st Lieutenant Edward B. Sheehan, Battalion Medical Officer of 101st United States Infantry, 2d Battalion, at first aid station caring for wounded before being sent to Field Hospitals, Bois-de-la-Voisogne, France, May 31, 1918.
Algerian Troops watching Companies A and B, 101st Supply Train, pass through Euville, France, May 5, 1918.

Sergeant Gideon J. Eikleberry, Photo Detachment, 26th Division, enjoying fresh doughnuts, Salvation Army Hall, Boucq, France, April 20, 1918.
Members of 101st Machine Gun Battalion, helping Miss Janis of the Young Men's Christian Association Theatrical Corps entertain. Bois-de-Rehanne, France, May 22, 1918.

Boys of 101st Machine Gun Battalion, being entertained by Elsie Janis of the Young Men's Christian Association Theatrical Corps, going to the trenches, Bois-de-Rehanne, France, May 22, 1918.
Divisional Switchboard, Chief Signal Office, 101st Field Battalion Signal Corps, formerly 1st Massachusetts Field Artillery Battalion, 26th Division, Master Signal Electrician Edmund J. Winslow in charge. Boucq, France, May 10, 1918.

Captain J. P. Booth (Physical Director), Lieutenant W. B. O'Connor and Private W. Y. Lloyd with an automobile load of Young Men's Christian Association sporting goods for men back from front. 26th Division. Boucq, France, May 8, 1918.
Kitchen Police at Hidden Kitchen of 101st Infantry, from which food is taken to the boys in the trenches. Bois-de-la-Voisogne, France, May 31, 1918.
Battery D, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division, firing from its camouflage position, Captain F. J. Abbott commanding, Manires, France, May 12, 1918, showing how difficult it was to photograph artillery in action on account of camouflage.
The Gas Fanners or Trench Cleaners waiting for the Gas Attack to cease, to clear the Gas from the Trenches, January 24, 1918.

Rushing to Chateau-Thierry. When Germans were advancing on Paris, Trains were packed with Troops rushing to its defence. Sergeant Eikleberry and Private Painter of the Photographic Unit making Pictures on the Train. Both men were wounded five days later in the Attack on Bouresches Woods.
Carrying Casket from Bier to Hearse — Funeral of Major Raoul Lufberry, 94th Aero Pursuit Squadron, the American Ace, killed Sunday, May 19, 1918. Evacuation Hospital No. 1, near Toul, France.

Interior of Red Cross Evacuation Hospital No. 1, in which lay the body of Major Raoul Lufberry, the American Ace, killed near Toul, Sunday, May 19, 1918. 94th Aero Pursuit Squadron, Toul, France.
All Bridges Near the Front are Wrecked by the French to Prevent German Invasion. Flirey, France, May 31, 1918.

Major General Clarence R. Edwards, Commanding 26th Division, paying last respects to Major Raoul Lufberry. Funeral of Major Raoul Lufberry, 94th Aero Pursuit Squadron, near Toul, France, May 20, 1918. Major Lufberry, the American ace, was killed Sunday, May 19, 1918.
Knights of Columbus War Work Leaders. From left to right: William J. Mulligan, War Activities Committee, James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight, William P. Larkin, Director Overseas Work.

A Boxing Contest at the Front, under auspices of Knights of Columbus.
The Colors of the 104th Infantry as They Passed the Reviewing Stand at the Decoration for Conspicuous Bravery. Manoncourt, France, June 11, 1918.

Battery D, 103d Field Artillery. Loading 155 mm. Gun in Readiness to Fire on German Batteries. 26th Division, Mandres, France, May 12, 1918.
The Herons Sisters giving an open air performance to members of 101st Machine Gun Battalion directly behind the lines. First theatrical Young Men's Christian Association group that appeared at the front. They went to advance positions, playing for the boys, and their services were greatly appreciated. Bois-de-Rehanne, France, May 20, 1918.

Crowds Watching the Performance of the Soldiers of the 26th Division Theatrical Troop. Mussy-sur-Seine, France.
Quartermasters Unloading Carefully Dried Wood for Field Kitchens from Cars, Menil-la-Tour, France, May 25, 1918.

21st Railway Engineers, Supply Train near Menil-la-Tour, France, 26th Division. Menil-la-Tour, France, May 27, 1918.

Knights of Columbus Workers in Paris before Going to the Front.