Each Legislative Souvenir has its own special features of legislation and legislators to represent. Fortunately the editor is not required to attempt any explanation of the differences he finds in each Legislature. "His not to reason why." That is for the voters to pass upon. The Souvenir of 1897 is remarkable in that, for the first time, it represents an Executive Council composed wholly of Republicans. And it is still more remarkable, probably, in that this Council includes a Negro, one who was born a slave, but who, by the curious and intricate complications of modern politics in Boston, was elected by his district as one of the constitutional advisers of the Governor. As it is quite improbable that the present generation will again see a Council wholly Republican or a Councillor of Negro blood, this Souvenir of 1897 will have a unique value in this respect at least. And this Councillor came and went among his fellows, in all respects as though the accident of color made no shade of difference between them. The Legislature of 1897, like most Legislatures, had one chief bill to pass upon,—that for a new Elevated Railroad for Boston. The bill became law with no suspicion of improper action attaching to it in all its progress, even though almost untold millions were at stake. There were many other measures of great financial importance, even more than usual, while the political legislation was, perhaps, of less moment than usual. Especially noteworthy is the fact that the sessions of the Senate were held in a hall specially provided by finishing for that purpose the upper half of Memorial Hall, a most satisfactory room being thereby provided. The views given elsewhere are doubtless the only views that ever will be published of that room. This Souvenir contains also a special feature in the picture of Tom Meagher, the gallant one-armed veteran of the War, who has been for many years a popular fixture as the "candy man." The following pages show you the portraits of the men who made the laws of 1897 and give you also their biographical sketches, the votes for them and their opponents, and the facsimiles of their autographs.

THE SENATE CHAMBER.

The musket on the left bears this inscription: — "The first Firearm captured in the War for Independence." The musket on the right is thus inscribed: — "This Firearm was used by Capt. John Parker at the Battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775. The drum, sword of an infantry officer, Hessian helmet and musket are trophies of the battle of Bennington, as the document framed below testifies, as follows:
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

SIR:

The General Assembly of this State take the earliest opportunity to acknowledge the receipt of your acceptable present—the tokens of victory gained at the memorable battle of Bennington. The events of that day strongly mark the bravery of the men, who, unskilled in war, forced from their intrenchments a chosen number of veteran troops of boasted Britons; as well as the address and valor of the General who directed their movements and led them on to conquest. This signal exploit opened the way to a rapid succession of advantages most important to America. These trophies shall be safely deposited in the archives of the State, and there remind posterity of the irresistible power of the GOD of Armies, and the honors due to the memory of the brave. Still attended with like Success, may you long enjoy the rewards of your grateful Country.

BRIGADIER GENL. JOHN STARK.

This hall has seen varied gatherings, but none of greater interest than that of April 17, 1861. On that day, the first volunteer company of the whole country, during the late War of the Rebellion, assembled here, chose its officers, received overcoats from the government and in an hour and a half from the time of assembling was on its way to the front. The story, in more detail, is as follows: In Cambridge, in 1860, had been formed a company of "Wide Awakes" to help elect President Lincoln. Hon. J. M. S. Williams, congressman from that district, promised them that if they would keep up their organization they could go to Washington to see Lincoln inaugurated. But the United States government forbade the assembling of such bodies at the national capital. During the dark days of February, 1861, several of the company agreed to volunteer if they were needed, and, on the 14th of February, several of them signed an agreement to that effect. First on the list was the name of John Kinnear, now assistant door-keeper of the House. In the first week in March, he, with a few others, visited the State House and personally tendered their services to Governor Andrew. He advised them that there was no immediate need of their services and that they return to Cambridge, whence he would summon them if necessary. Then came the news of the breaking out of rebellion. They at once visited the State House, finding the Governor and Council in session. Governor Andrew told them to return to Cambridge and that they would receive orders in an hour. They returned and the orders speedily reached them. Then, again, they hastened to the State House, many of their members leaving their work and throwing their tools into the street. Reaching the State House, they assembled in Doric Hall, ninety-seven of them. In a small adjoining room they chose officers, electing James Prentice Richardson, now of Texas, as captain. They first went to the Old Colony station, but were soon ordered to the "S. R. Spaulding," where they embarked for Fortress Monroe. They were first assigned to the Fifth regiment, but were soon transferred to the Third, becoming Company C. This was, without doubt, the first volunteer company of the late war. It is a matter of history that this prompt, loyal and general response of this company, in contrast with the scattering returns from more pretentious organizations, did much to encourage the State authorities and "the great war Governor."

In this hall lay, in state, the body of Charles Sumner, Sunday, March 15, 1874, where it was viewed by a multitude as vast as time would allow.

In this hall gathered the "Army of the Unemployed," February 20, 1894, whence they were removed by detachments of the district and Boston police, but without violence. They had just been addressed on the Capitol steps by Governor Greenhalge.

This view is taken from the main entrance. In the distance are the cannon commemorative of the battles of Lexington and Concord, the battle flags of the Rebellion and, in the midst of all, the statue of Washington.

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

Resolutions were adopted for an increase of the pay of letter carriers in cities above a certain size.

Senator Holden of Suffolk entertained his fellow senators at a dinner at the Hotel Tuileries, one evening in March, much to the pleasure of all present.

The Senate occupied as temporary quarters a large chamber temporarily fitted up, consisting of the upper portion of what will be Memorial Hall when completed.

The Senate adopted resolutions of sympathy with Sylvester Scovel, a newspaper correspondent in Cuba, but the resolutions finally died in the House of Representatives.

The Governor and Council occupied temporary quarters, consisting of the rooms at the north end of the Extension designed for the use regularly of the railroad commissioners.

The Democratic minority of the committee on the votes for the councillors-elect wished to canvass the ballots themselves in the Allen-Sullivan contested case, but the majority decided there was no reason for going behind the returns.

Representatives Cooke, McClellan, Neill, Shattuck, James Keenan of Boston, Fairbank and Rice were a special committee to attend the funeral of Representative B. A. Nourse of Westborough, and to prepare suitable resolutions, Feb. 2.

Senators Barber, Prevaux and Ives and Representatives Lawrence, Kelton, Cowee, Stevens, McClellan, Gerder, Dewing and Porter of Agawam were appointed a special committee on the investigation of alleged tuberculous cows in Dracut and Lowell.

Both House and Senate were visited, June 10, by the International Postal Congress, Representative Dubuque of Fall River making an eloquent address of welcome in French in that branch, and President Lawrence making a brief address of welcome in the Senate.

Senators Black, Soule and Moran and Representatives Reed of Taunton, Waterman of Taunton, Mason, Barnes, Estes, Marden and Woodman of Medway were appointed a special committee to attend the funeral of Gen. Darius N. Couch of Taunton, Feb. 17, and to prepare suitable resolutions.

Messrs. Manchester, Evans, Quirk, Parsons, Reidy, Clark, Chapple, Crawford and Dubuque were appointed, February 9, a special committee to conduct impeachment proceedings against County Commissioner Morrell of Norfolk County, but the supreme court, in answer to an order from the House, decided that such impeachment would be unconstitutional.

A legislative dinner, attended by members of both branches and of both parties, was an enjoyable mid-winter feature of the session especially the "Snap Shots on Beacon Hill," in rhyme, by Representative Gallison. Another very pleasant occasion was the trip down the Merrimac river on the steamer "Merrimack," June 8, tendered their fellow legislators by Representatives George of Haverhill and Hoyt of Bradford.

President Lawrence and Senators Roe, Everett, Lomasney, Woodfall, Harding, Ives, Folsom and Brigham and Speaker Bates and Representatives Woodbury, Thompson, Hanson, Grimes, Hall of Everett, Cowee, Bachelder, Bunting, Bosworth, Bartlett of Boston, Howard, Shattuck, Packard, Gardner, Russell, Ramsay, Mellen of Great Barrington and Grant were appointed to represent the General Court at the celebration of the centennial of the inauguration of the first Massachusetts president, John Adams, held in the Old South Meeting House, March 4.

On Wednesday, May 26, a joint convention was held to witness the formal presentation to the Governor of the Bradford Manuscript History of "Plimouth Plantation" recently ordered by decree of the Consistorial and Episcopal Court of London to be returned to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by the hands of the Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, lately ambassador at the court of St. James's. The President of the Senate being in the chair, a committee consisting of Messrs. Roe, Woodward and Gallivan, of the Senate, and Messrs. Pierce of Milton, Bailey of Plymouth, Brown of Gloucester, Fairbank, Bailey of Newbury, Sanderson, Whittlesey, and Bartlett of Boston, of the House, was appointed to wait upon the Governor and inform him that the two branches were in convention. Soon the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Council, Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, Hon. George F. Hoar, and other invited guests, came in. The decree of the Consistorial and Episcopal Court of London authorizing the return of the manuscript and its delivery to the Governor of the Commonwealth, was read. The President then introduced Hon. George F. Hoar, who addressed the convention, giving an account of the manuscript and of the many efforts that had been made to secure its return. Hon. Thomas F. Bayard was then introduced by the President, and he formally presented the manuscript to the Governor, who accepted it in behalf of the Commonwealth. On motion of Senator Bradford of Springfield, a lineal descendant of Gov. Bradford, the author of the "History," an order was adopted that the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts place on record their high appreciation of the generous and gracious courtesy that prompted this act of international good will, and express their grateful thanks to all concerned therein, and especially to the Lord Bishop of London, for the return to the Commonwealth of this precious relic.
