The Commission on Government

In the Year of the Lord 1954

The Commission on Government was organized in 1953 to study the structure and functions of the Federal Government. It was created by the President and the Senate. The Commission's report is being presented to the President and the Senate for their consideration. The Commission's report is divided into two parts. The first part deals with the structure of the Federal Government. The second part deals with the functions of the Federal Government. The Commission believes that the structure of the Federal Government should be reorganized to make it more efficient and effective. The Commission also believes that the functions of the Federal Government should be reorganized to make them more effective. The Commission's report is being presented to the President and the Senate for their consideration. The Commission believes that the President and the Senate should take prompt action on the Commission's report. The Commission believes that the President and the Senate should take prompt action on the Commission's report. The Commission believes that the President and the Senate should take prompt action on the Commission's report.
